Sheree Seretse

Sheree Seretse (she/her) graduated from the University of Washington and studied the world of Zimbabwean Music and dance through Dr. Dumisani Maraire. Sheree was instrumental in developing several performing ensembles through the Langston Hughes Cultural Arts Center. Seretse has also taught at a number of locations including multiple schools in the Northwest, Northeast and Canada. She is currently teaching at the Spruce Street School in Seattle and Jewish Day School in Bellevue. Sheree is the music director of Anzanga, Zambuko and Simba Marimba Ensembles. Sheree's mission is to make the music known and accessible for all ages by inspiring and highlighting the rich culture of the Shona people of Zimbabwe.

Zambuko Marimba Ensemble performs traditional and contemporary marimba of Zimbabwe. The music is joyful to listen to and very conducive for dancing. Zambuko has been performing for over 10 years throughout the Northwest.

Simba Youth Marimba Ensemble has been together for about 8 years with members ranging in ages from 13-18. The group has performed throughout Washington and Oregon
